INTRODUCTION

The obituaries which are abstracted in this volume are taken entirely from newspapers published within the boundaries of present-day Dearborn County.

Most have been microfilmed, and all are available, either in the original, or on microfilm, at either the Lawrenceburg or Aurora Public Library. Each library holds the papers published in its respective town. Wilmington newspapers are at Aurora. Most of the newspapers are also available at the Indiana State Library, Indianapolis, in the newspaper archives division.

In abstracting these obituaries, the author was dismayed by the large number of issues which are missing, especially among the earlier newspapers. Nevertheless, it is encouraging to note that, of the several newspapers published during this time period, enough remain to construct a fairly complete chronological file.

One of the finest aids to newspaper research in Indiana is "Indiana Newspaper Bibliography", by John W. Miller, Indianapolis, The Indiana Historical Society, 1982. This very valuable work lists every newspaper ever published in Indiana, together with locations, dates of publication, and information about the publishers themselves. It was a tremendous help in identifying early Dearborn newspapers, and in verifying that all possible copies had been consulted.

In general this book contains only abstracts of obituaries and coroner's inquests, except for the period prior to March 1826, when all probate notices were also abstracted. This was done because of the disastrous fire which destroyed the Dearborn County Court House in March 1826. Probate matters after that date can readily be found in the court records.

In most cases, when a death was reported in more than one newspaper, the author has deleted the extra report, consolidating any added information in the remaining notice.

The index to this volume contains every name mentioned in the obituaries, and includes relatives or other people who were mentioned along with the deceased.
